Provide thorough and thoughtful responses to the following questions. Yes and No answers are insufficient, so comment, explain or offer suggestions for each response. You may also write on the draft and mark grammar/punctuation when necessary. You can expand to the back of this page if need.

1. Does the introduction have a hook (opening line) that is relevant to the purpose of the essay? How does help you to predict what you expect to find in the body of the essay? How can the introduction be improved?

Yes "life should be more than walking up to only clock in and out" This helps transition into the next part of the essay because I know that he will talk about a deeper meaning of work. The introduction can be improved by explaining what passion is.

2. Are you able to summarize the content of the essay? Is there a particular sentence or section that seems most important to the meaning of the essay? If so, why would you select this sentence?

Yes the content can be summed up easily. The section that talks about faith is very important because it is the main idea behind his lifeview. The sentence "God influences my everyday life by always being there in mysterious ways"

3. What does the core theme, lesson or insight seem to be in the essay? Does this insight seem too obvious or too general? Are there ways that the writer can improve clarity or build on the insight more?

The core theme of the essay revolves around the fact that one must know their purpose and reason for existence in order to have a fulfilling and productive life.

4. Does the writer maintain writing conventions, include logical transitions, complex sentence structures and provide a logical order and flow? In what ways can the writer improve in any of these areas?

Yes, the flow needs to get worked on, the transitions can be better. You can give more explanation on the topic before you talk about it, like passion and flow.

5. What are the strongest aspects of the essay? What are the areas that need the most improvements?

I think the strongest aspect is when you explain your life experiences, because it gives the reader a perspective on your lifeview, just work on transitioning from one topic to another, and grammar.
